CLEAR CONGRESS DECKS FOR DECISIVE ACTION

MANY IMPORTANT PROBLEMS ARE TO BE TAKEN UP

FINAL DISPOSITION OF MUSCLE SHOALS EXPECTED THIS WEEK

NAVY RECONDITIONING BILL, POSTAL SALARIES INCREASE BILL

(By United Press)

Washington, Dec. 8.—The decks in Congress are cleared for decisive action this week on all the important problems that will come up before it this session.

The final disposition of the Muscle Shoals problem by adoption of a modification of the Underwood bill, adoption of the navy reconditioning bill and action on the postal salaries increase bill are planned by Senate leaders.

Decision on the Underwood Muscle Shoals bill is hanging fire, waiting word from the White House as to how the president stands. He is expected to go before Congress today and clear the way for adoption of the measure tomorrow if it is possible.

Senator Underwood, author of the measure, has been given reason to believe that the president will support the bill.

Chairman Hale will bring before the Senate today or tomorrow the old naval bill which failed of adoption at the last session because of the objections of Senator King, Utah democrat. It is expected to be passed speedily.

RESOLUTION IN SENATE ON PACKERS

Washington, Dec. 8.—A resolution calling upon the Federal Trade Commission to report all the facts concerning an alleged attempt of the Big Five packers to secure modification of the recent court decree against them was adopted today by the Senate. The decree restrains the packers from competing in the wholesale grocery trade.

The resolution states that the packers are fighting the decree, and inasmuch as "public policies are involved," the Commission should furnish the senate with information as to whether the action of the packers is justified and whether if the packers succeed in vacating the decree it will prove detrimental to the public interest.

The resolution was introduced by Senator Norris, Nebraska, leader of the midwestern farm group.

MUD CHAIN SAVINGS OFFSET HIS CAR TAX

Albert Lea, Dec. 5.—The money formerly spent for mud-chains is now paying the license tax on his car, declares A. E. Palmer of this city, a commercial salesman covering territory in southwestern Minnesota.

"Before the new highway program was started," said Mr. Palmer, "I wore out three sets of mud chains each season and in 1919 four sets. In the spring of 1922 I bought a new set and have not had them on the car since the fall of 1922, except once last summer and that road had been graveled since then. I travel in my car from 16,000 to 20,000 miles per year in all kinds of weather, except when the snow is too deep.

"Now the point is," he continued, "that what I save on my mud chains alone will pay the license on my car, and I am ahead the personal property tax, a large per cent of gasoline, wear and tear on the car, tires and lots of wear and tear on my system and temper.

"Naturally I am for the highway department and all it proposes or recommends," concluded Mr. Palmer.

STATE DEMANDS THAT HE BE HANGED FOR HIS CRIME

(By United Press)

Los Angeles, Dec. 8.—"Kid" McCoy, former prize ring idol, went to Superior court today to face the greatest battle of his career.

The "kid" was charged with slaying Mrs. Teresa Mors, his last love, with whom he had been living. The state was to demand that he hang.

The defense, according to rumor before the trial opened, will seek another postponement. Deputy district attorneys in charge of the prosecution will contect the move.

McCOY LOSES FIRST ROUND

Los Angeles, Dec. 8.—"Kid" McCoy, once a prize ring hero, lost the first round of his battle for life here today.

Motion of the defense for a second continuance of the McCoy trial on a charge of killing Mrs. Teresa Mors, his paramour, was denied by Judge Charles S. Crail. The defense plea that some necessary witnesses had not been found showed "lack of diligence" the court declared.

Consideration of 100 witnesses of the state and defense who were on hand prevented another postponement of the trial, Judge Crail held.

The decision that the trial must proceed came after the defense request had been opposed by Deputy District Attorney Fricke in vigorous terms.

Selection of the jury started immediately after Judge Crail's decision. Thirty-five of the 50 members of the jury panel are women.

BRITON SAYS CHEAP MOTOR-CARS SAVES U. S. FROM REDS

(By United Press)

London, Dec. 8.—"America's antidote for Bolshevism has been the wide and almost universal use of a certain cheap motor-car."

Thus Lord Ashfield, discussing the reelection of President Coolidge.

Lord Ashfield, who is Czar of the London Underground, did not say what motor-car he meant. That reticence is very British.

His argument is that in America the workingman has it pretty flossy during the eight hours he works—a mellifluous whistle to start with, good tools to work with, a marble wash-room, a bright sunny noon-hour, and a few jolly hours in the afternoon. Then home. Ah, there's where Bolshevism gets in its deadly work. But in America the workingman possesses a "certain" motor-car and as soon as the steaming "wash" in the kitchen begins to pall upon him, he takes out his car and hies him into the fragrant countryside.

That, says Lord Ashfield, is his escape. That's why he is NOT a Bolshevist.

With the control of the Mesabi Motor Bus Co. and the ultimate control of the Range Rapid Transit Co., the Twin City group would virtually control motor bus transportation throughout northern Minnesota, and most of the transportation north of the Twin Cities.

The consolidation of a number of other motorbus companies operating in Minnesota and the possible formation of a subsidiary company of the Twin City group was talked of this morning. The ultimate aim is to take over a large portion of the express business now handled by the railroads serving short-haul trade north of the Twin Cities.

Similarly, plans have been made to take over a large portion of the southern Minnesota dairy express business if the proposed consolidation of the southern part of the state materializes.—St. Paul Daily News.

MEN WORK CALMLY, LINE UP 10 BANK CUSTOMERS

(By United Press)

Milwaukee, Dec. 8.—Six armed bandits help up Northwestern National bank at Lisbon and North Avenue here today and made their escape in an automobile with $10,000 in cash and $300,000 in securities.

Ten persons, including several customers, were in the bank when the bandits entered.

All were ordered to throw up their hands and lined up against the wall while two of the bandits stood guard, three others made their way to the vault to sack up currency and securities which were stored there.

A clerk who gave fight was felled with a blow on the head and the bandits continued their work, gathering together what money was in sight.

According to those who witnessed the robbery the men worked calmly and were not the least bit excited. After they had taken the cash and securities they rushed to a waiting automobile and made their escape.

REPUBLICAN GROUP WINS VICTORY IN NATIONAL TEUTON ELECTION

(By United Press)

Berlin, Dec. 8.—The republican group in Germany won a victory in the national elections which were held throughout the country Sunday.

At 9:30 a. m. returns showed the socialists, democrats and centrists running ahead of the nationalists, communists and fascists.

Approximately 85 per cent of the electorate went to the polls to choose a new Reichstag, the vote being the heaviest ever polled in Germany. Many disturbances between the opposing factions kept police busy through Saturday night and Sunday.

Although there were a score of parties having candidates, the chief issue lay between the republicans, under the black, red and gold banner, and the monarchists under the black, white and red.

The former group won so decisive a victory that it will be possible to form a republican and middle regime, which will have a clear majority and will not have to kowtow to the nationalists, as was the case last summer when Chancellor Marx had to make concessions to save the Dawes plan.

If the socialists, centrists, democrats and Bavarian folksparties join in a coalition they can resist opposition from the nationalists or any combination of their political foes.

As a result of yesterday's election the nationalists are the second largest party in the Reichstag, but a coalition will render this negligible.

It was a "jazz election," with every new device known to politicians employed to stir popular enthusiasm and attract voters to the polls. Berlin was literally ankle deep in posters before Sunday was over.

Weston-Simmons

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Simmons, 823 Holly street, on Monday morning occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Florence to Harry Franklin Weston, Rev. E. A. Cooke, of the Methodist church officiating in the presence of immediate relatives and friends.

Promptly at ten o'clock the bridal party entered the parlor to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Mildred Skauge, a girlhood chum of the bride's. The vows were exchanged before an improvised altar of ferns and smilax.

The bride was attired in a gown of dark brown satin, and carried a shower bouquet of tea roses and sweet peas. Her traveling gown was of penny-brown charmene, with hat to match.

After the ceremony a five-course breakfast was served, those assisting being the Misses Bessie Paine and Maude Williams and Mrs. R. O. Stitzel. The tables were decorated with pink roses and pink candles in silver candlesticks. Ferns and cut flowers were used throughout the home as the decorative scheme.

The bride is well and favorably known in Brainerd, where she has a large circle of friends. She is a graduate of the local high school and commercial college, and for several years has held a responsible stenographic position in the office of the master mechanic of the Northern Pacific Railway at Staples.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Weston, of Staples, and holds a position in the superintendent's office of the Northern Pacific in that town.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Weston, daughters Miss Ethelyn and Marian and sons Clyde and Arthur, I. F. Weston, the groom's grandfather, and Thomas Fitzgerald, all of Staples.

The happy couple left on the noon train for the twin cities, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will be at home to their many friends at Staples after December 15th. The Dispatch joins in offering congratulations and best wishes.

Patent Office Catching Up With Its Work, Says Director

(By United Press)

Washington, Dec. 8.—The Patent Office is gradually catching up on the amount of work awaiting official action, it was showed in its annual report to the Secretary of the Interior made public here today.

There are now on hand 12,000 fewer patent cases than there were a year ago, 2,468 fewer design cases, and 1,850 fewer trade-mark cases, showing a decrease on hand of over 16,000 cases for the year, the report stated. Applications were also acted upon more promptly, it was said.

Total receipts of the Patent Office amounted to $3,042,276 for the past fiscal year, the largest ever received for any single year. This increase was made notwithstanding a slight decrease in the number of applications for patents, designs, and trade marks from 100,724 for the preceding year to 99,503 for the last fiscal year.

The Public Buildings Commission has placed at the disposal of the Patent Office about 70 rooms in the Old Land Office Building across the street from the Patent Office and in view of this the Patent Office is undergoing a thorough reorganization which will make for greater efficiency, the report said.

The committee which is to study the Patent Office procedure is to be composed of representatives nominated by the American Bar Association, the United States Chamber of Commerce, National Association of Patent Lawyers, and the Patent Law Associations in Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh, and New York, the report said. Every facility and opportunity will be offered this committee to make an entirely independent study of Patent Office procedure.

The report called attention to the fact that unregistered attorneys and attorneys who have been disbarred for gross misconduct are practicing in at least eight widely scattered cities.

WOMEN MOST CRUEL TO FELLOW WOMEN?

Feminine Writer's Arraignment of Gentler Sex.

That women are unjust to women is an ancient cry. But there has never been any different answer to the question. "Why?" Women are unjust to women because they don't trust them, and because they fear them, and they have always had ample reason for that mistrust and fear, is a statement made by Jane Doe, in the Continental Edition of the London Mail.

Even the injustices to which women in the workaday world are subject from colleagues of their own set, the cattiness of forewomen and manageresses, the refined bullying of certain hospital matrons and hotel housekeepers, the slave-driving mistresses who want the arts of the chef, the manners of a duchess, the gumption of a field marshal, and the energy of a pack mule, all told in the same domestic for a few dollars a year; the backbiting, the jealousies, the enmity and the petty rivalries and utter snobbishness to be found flourishing like ugly weeds in every layer of feminine society—all these pale into utter insignificance before the stupendous cruelty of woman to woman where hearts and men are concerned.

Let us face the naked facts and put sentimentality and all popular but lying fallacies anent the inherent saintliness and gentleness of what is really the unfair sex on one side. Woman's greatest enemy after she gets a husband is woman.

Men have been, and are, responsible for much of the unhappiness that enters into the lives of single girls, but it is women in the main who ruin the happiness of wives. For every woman who tries to make a shining success of her married life, there are a dozen women in the offing who are convinced they could do it a lot better if they were given the chance. And some of them stop at nothing to secure that chance.

If the secret history behind most of the unhappy stories of women who have been forced to leave their husbands, or who have been deserted by them, were revealed to the public, the story would be astounding—astounding because it would tell of the appalling prevalence of the girl-thief of married love, the feminine cuckoo who is fouling another woman's love-nest, the pirate on the matrimonial seas who doesn't care what hopes she wrecks and what honor and peace she shatters forever.

I know of a score of such cases, I have heard of scores more, and I have read of hundreds like them. Nor are all these women the lurid vamps so unfaithfully portrayed on those cheap-novelettes-in-de-luxe-bindings which we call films. They do not flit like beautiful birds of paradise across the horizon of happily married men, dazzling their good sense with mysterious perfumes, intoxicating them with rose du tendre kisses, blinding them with their charm and magic to all other bonds but worthless ones.

We wish they did. They would be so easily sorted out. Alas, the thief of love can be a commonplace girl in an office with a gift for petting and soulful sympathy; she can be the woman wearing a transformation who lives next door and who invites you both in for mah-jongg and chicken sandwiches, subsequently helping herself to your husband's chicken heart.

The Largest Building

If the question were to be asked: "Which is the world's largest building?" probably nine out of every ten Americans would name either the Equitable or the Woolworth building in New York city. Either answer would be wrong. So far as is known, the structure which really deserves the distinction is the homely eight-story warehouse of the United States army base in Brooklyn. It contains 52 acres of floor space—almost double that of the renowned Equitable building. It's easy to forget the merely useful things, in giving attention to the spectacular or pretentious ones.—Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

Judge Smith Hiskenlooper said at a dinner in Cincinnati:

"An ignorant witness is not necessarily a stupid one. A woman who could neither read nor write said to me in a desertion case:

Bass Missed Its Meal

Polk Walker, a farmer near Mountain Home, Ark., tells a new Izaak Walton story that on second thought is not so hard to believe. It is of a bass which tried to swallow an eel, but failed because the eel was too slippery. The eel's tail passed through the bass' mouth, slipping out the left gill while its head slipped into the right gill and out.

Busy New York

Traffic into and out of Manhattan, the heart of New York city, has increased 25 per cent since 1920. Nearly 200,000 vehicles were counted recently entering or leaving that island in a single day.

MAN KILLED ON STATE HIGHWAY

ELK RIVER MAN IS STRUCK BY HEAVY CAR SATURDAY MORNING

(St. Cloud Journal Press)

William Brennan, aged 84, for a great many years a resident of Elk River, was struck by an automobile and instantly killed Saturday morning as he walked along the paved highway near his home. Brennan was walking near the center of the pavement, according to a witness of the smash, when a Lincoln car driven by J. F. Woodhead of Brainerd made the turn from the bridge onto the straight stretch which leads north out of the village.

The driver of the car attempted to swing around Brennan, but the latter made a sharp turn to the left to avoid the car at the same time and was knocked down.

An inquest was immediately held and the coroner's jury exonerated the Brainerd man as to any fault in the matter. Several persons witnessed the accident and all of them insisted that the accident was unavoidable as far as the driver was concerned. The victim leaves a large family of sons and daughters, most of them residing in Elk River and vicinity, and also many grandchildren.

Judge Smith Hiskenlooper said at a dinner in Cincinnati:

"An ignorant witness is not necessarily a stupid one. A woman who could neither read nor write said to me in a desertion case:

"'Judge, when a man starts brushin' his clothes and cleanin' his teeth and polishin' his nails, his wife knows there's something in the wind.'"—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Bass Missed Its Meal

Polk Walker, a farmer near Mountain Home, Ark., tells a new Izaak Walton story that on second thought is not so hard to believe. It is of a bass which tried to swallow an eel, but failed because the eel was too slippery. The eel's tail passed through the bass' mouth, slipping out the left gill while its head slipped into the right gill and out.

MAN KILLED ON STATE HIGHWAY

ELK RIVER MAN IS STRUCK BY HEAVY CAR SATURDAY MORNING

(St. Cloud Journal Press)

William Brennan, aged 84, for a great many years a resident of Elk River, was struck by an automobile and instantly killed Saturday morning as he walked along the paved highway near his home. Brennan was walking near the center of the pavement, according to a witness of the smash, when a Lincoln car driven by J. F. Woodhead of Brainerd made the turn from the bridge onto the straight stretch which leads north out of the village.

The driver of the car attempted to swing around Brennan, but the latter made a sharp turn to the left to avoid the car at the same time and was knocked down.

An inquest was immediately held and the coroner's jury exonerated the Brainerd man as to any fault in the matter. Several persons witnessed the accident and all of them insisted that the accident was unavoidable as far as the driver was concerned. The victim leaves a large family of sons and daughters, most of them residing in Elk River and vicinity, and also many grandchildren.

A LONGER TOURIST SEASON

THE Minneapolis Tribune editorially takes up the matter of extending Minnesota's tourist season, something the Brainerd Dispatch has done in yeoman and pioneer work over two years ago. The local writer had articles in eastern papers including the Atlantic City Gazette which ran a half column front page, calling attention to the efforts of Brainerd Lake Region to extend the tourist season to include the glorious months of September and October. Just as Brainerd is seeking to extend its tourist trade, so Atlantic City is working indefatigably to extend its season.

Captain William H. Fawcett in 1922 operated with a season commencing May 15th and running to November 1st. No man could do more for the movement and he was at considerable expense keeping the large force of chefs, waiters and attendants at Breezy Point Lodge, whose efficiency was kept unimpaired to the close of the extended season. Editorials are good and publicity is good, but it takes real cooperation to make the late fall tourist business a successful one for a large resort owner who is anxious to maintain the reputation for service achieved in the summer months. Breezy Point Lodge and cottages are equipped with adequate heating facilities for cold weather.

At that time, over two years ago, papers like the Duluth Herald, Duluth News Tribune, Minneapolis Journal, Minneapolis Tribune, Chicago Tribune, Des Moines Register and Leader and others carried editorials and articles on the extension of the tourist season in the Brainerd Lake Region to include September and October.

There are two general ways to expand the tourist season and resort business in Minnesota, says the Minneapolis Tribune. One is, of course, to enhance further the charms of the state for the pleasure-seeker and health-seeker and to make the world more familiar with these charms. The other is to broaden the time span of the operative season so as to make it include all of September and October, if not also November.

Both of these ways will be considered by the Ten Thousand Lakes association at its annual meeting in St. Paul Thursday. Lengthening the season, which hitherto has been confined largely to June, July and August, is a phase of the subject that has not received due consideration. It is deserving of more emphasis, if one may judge by the large number of tourists who passed through the Minneapolis gateway in September, October and November.

It is not to be hoped that the fall tourist business ever can be made to equal that of the earlier and milder months, but it can be made much larger than it is. Due to the fact that children return to school early in September, the matter of extending the resort season will be largely one of successful appeal to adults who have a penchant for the outdoor life, or can be induced to make more of this life for purposes of health and recreation.

A successful autumn tourist and outing season presupposes, as a matter of course, comfortable indoor living conditions. These conditions in turn presuppose adequate heating facilities. Courting chill air outdoors is a healthful pastime. Enduring it indoors is under a ban of common sense. Increasing the number of autumn tourists obviously involves increasing the capacity of resorts that have equipment for seasonable heating.

There can't be any plunging on this expansion. It must come, if at all, in gradual development and in proportion as the pleasure-seeking, health-seeking public becomes habituated in thinking of the fall months in Minnesota as standard outing months. There have been numerous visible signs of this growing habit in Minneapolis in the last three months.

HENRY FORD CAN DO IT

AFTER Henry Ford has popularized his car until all the world cranks one, after buying a railroad and making it pay, running a magazine and making it pay, carrying on wonderful experiments in the conservation of material and the utilization of waste, opening coal mines, ore mines, establishing boat traffic on the lakes, etc., etc., he has now taken up the problem of river traffic on the Mississippi.

Here is what the St. Paul Daily News says in regard to river traffic contemplated:

"River traffic, that dream of years since the railroad drove the steamboat off the upper Mississippi river, is actually near a revival today.

"The Ford Motor Co. has placed an order for a fleet of light-draft barges and towboats which are expected to be navigating the river by next summer.

"If the experiment works, there is no doubt that much freight will be carried up and down the Mississippi. Certainly for bulk freight destined for southern ports the river, if it can be navigated, offers the cheapest mode of transportation.

"And if there is any one person with the means and determination to make the experiment it is Henry Ford with his vast fortune and joy in doing things that others have declared impossible.

"Back in the 50's and 60's of the last century St. Paul was a real port. Each business day saw steamers lined up at its now neglected levee. Its chief source of wealth then as now came from its value as a transportation center.

"If the river can again be used to augment the rail traffic which centers here, the future can hardly be painted in too glowing colors."

COL. C. D. JOHNSON, reading of the silver medal of the vintage of 1807 found near Mission by a farmer, jogged his memory and said that some forty years ago he saw an Indian chief, a straight-limbed Chippewa, wear the identical medal in question. The colonel says he will bring the whole matter to the attention of the Minnesota State Historical society and maybe they can be induced to purchase the same from the present holder and add it to their collection of historical things.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S bride, reported sweet sixteen as to age, must continue her schooling according to the compulsory schooling laws of California. Not until she has attained the mature age of eighteen will she be permitted to forego her school attendance.

They Married Young in Days of Chivalry

Modern opinion, which is happily in favor of falling in love and of adult marriage, is often shocked by the air of business which pervaded matchmaking in the days of chivalry, and by the many cases of grown men married to little girls not yet out of their teens.

For reasons of property, or to settle family feuds, or simply to assure their own future, babies in cradles were sometimes betrothed and even married; all that the church required was that children should be free when they came of age (at fourteen and twelve years old) to repudiate the contract if they so desired.

Nothing seems to separate modern England from the good old days so plainly as the case of little Grace de Saleby, four years old, who for the sake of her broad acres was married to a great noble, and on his death two years later, to another, and yet again, when she was eleven, to a third, who paid 300 marks down for her. There is an odd mixture of humor and pathos in the story of some of these marriages. John Rigmarden, three years old, was carried to church in the arms of a priest, who coaxed him to repeat the words of matrimony, but half way through the service the child declared that he would learn no more that day, and the priest answered, "You must speak a little more, and then go play you."

James Ballard, ten years old, was married to Jane his wife "at X of the clocke in the night without the consent of any of his friends, bie one Sir Roger Blakey, then curate of Colne . . . . and the morowe after, the same James declarid vnto his Vnckle that the said Jane (beyinge a bigge damsell and mariageable at the same tyme) had intised him with two Apples, to go with her to Colne and to marry her."

Elizabeth Bridge, nee Rambotham, says that after her marriage to John Bridge, when he was eleven and she thirteen, he never used her "lovinglie, insomoche that the first night they were maried the said John would Eate no meate at supper, and when hit was bed tyme the said John did wepe to go home with his father, he beynge at that tyme at her brother's house."—From Medieval People, by Eileen Power.

Ministerial Family

For almost 150 years the family of Rev. Frederick Seely Porter, pastor of the Trinity Baptist church of Oklahoma City, has not been without a minister of the Baptist denomination. On both his mother's and his father's side were pioneer ministers who went into Canada from the United States in 1777 and there laid the foundation of a family of preachers and Bible teachers. Mr. Porter reached his present charge from New Brunswick, Canada, last February. Formerly he was secretary of the British and Foreign Bible society in Newfoundland and the Maritime provinces. After eight years spent in preparing himself for the ministry he received a commission as captain in the Canadian overseas forces and spent 39 months as chaplain at the front. He was promoted to major soon after he crossed.

Girls' Methods Changed

Girls have changed their ways and their attitude toward their parents in the course of a few centuries, if we are to accept two instances cited by C. K. Shorter in the London Sphere.

"I have the assurance of a lady on whose word I can rely absolutely that the modern girl of the following story was drawn, not from the imagination of a Punch artist, but from life," he writes. "This young lady, who I should say was on the best (modern) terms with her parents, said one morning casually to her mother, 'Mother, I am going to be married at eleven o'clock on Thursday morning in St. Andrew's church, if you and father would like to come.' The considerate invitation was, I believe, accepted by both parents gratefully and gracefully."

"WHY I TRADE IN BRAINERD CONTEST FOR DECEMBER 20

Editor Dispatch Essay Contest:

Why do we trade in Brainerd? Because Brainerd is our home town and we believe in the golden rule.

Within Brainerd or its radius we earn our money and raise our produce. These we must exchange for the commodities of life. If we do as we are done by, we will trade with our merchants, who are ready with honest goods, willing and courteous service, advice and credit when necessary.

"A fair exchange is no robbery," and there is great strength and wonderful accomplishment in pulling together.

Made Old Man Feel He Hadn't Realized Worth

Every business executive knows what it is to give and to receive letters of character. Some are given without much thought of the man at the other end of the line. And as a result, all are read with a grain of salt. Philosopher Ed Howe out in Kansas, epitomizes the situation by saying, "A man came into my office with the finest bunch of recommendations that a man ever had. He proved such a bore that I would have written him one myself to get him out of my office."

Which reminds me of a story, says Merle Thorpe in The Nation's Business.

An old negro from the southern rural districts had gone to the city seeking employment. Everywhere he went references were asked for. Finally he gave the names of former employers and in due time returned for a decision. Some of the letters were read to him in which he was praised very highly, and his work and loyalty greatly lauded. The old man's eyes opened wide with surprise and pleasure as he remarked, "Well, Ah declar', ef I had a-knowed Ah wus such a good nigger as dat Ah shure 'nuff would have got more pay."

Job of Breadwinning Cramping to Genius

When Homer smote his lyre he was probably inspired by an urge more noble than hunger. But in more modern times there has been an incessant lament on the part of men of genius whose expression has been hampered by the necessity of degrading their muse to the position of breadwinner. Dostoevski, the great Russian writer, gives striking testimony of this in letters, writes the Forum.

"I know I have it in me to write great books," he said—"books and stories in which I would condense all my thoughts, all my observations of existence and its deceptions, blighted ambitions and false pleasures. But I cannot do it.

"Who will realize, who has not gone through it, the feelings of a man anxiously waiting for the postman to bring him just enough to live on for a few days, and his disappointment when that postman fails to put in an appearance? And yet this is what I am enduring every single day of my existence. How can I labor for hire only, sell for cash my literary faculties and abilities without these faculties undergoing complete deterioration?"

Parson Was Handicapped

The local all-round sportsman met the vicar, who was returning home with his fishing tackle. The sportsman, who prided himself on being a great angler, and often said so, inquired:

"Hello, vicar! Any luck?"

"Yes," replied the vicar, tapping his basket. "I have a trout in here—a pound and a half—that I pulled out from the lower brook."

"Oh, that's nothing!" bragged the other. "I've caught dozens of fish of two pounds and over in that stream."

"Ah, but you have the advantage of me," complained the vicar.

"Advantage, vicar?" exclaimed the sporty one. "Same brook, and you have better gear!"

"I know that," retorted the reverend gentleman. "But you just remember that I am a parson and you're not."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"WHY I TRADE IN BRAINERD CONTEST FOR DECEMBER 20

Editor Dispatch Essay Contest:

Why do we trade in Brainerd? Because Brainerd is our home town and we believe in the golden rule.

Within Brainerd or its radius we earn our money and raise our produce. These we must exchange for the commodities of life. If we do as we are done by, we will trade with our merchants, who are ready with honest goods, willing and courteous service, advice and credit when necessary.

"A fair exchange is no robbery," and there is great strength and wonderful accomplishment in pulling together.

Made Old Man Feel He Hadn't Realized Worth

Every business executive knows what it is to give and to receive letters of character. Some are given without much thought of the man at the other end of the line. And as a result, all are read with a grain of salt. Philosopher Ed Howe out in Kansas, epitomizes the situation by saying, "A man came into my office with the finest bunch of recommendations that a man ever had. He proved such a bore that I would have written him one myself to get him out of my office."

Which reminds me of a story, says Merle Thorpe in The Nation's Business.

An old negro from the southern rural districts had gone to the city seeking employment. Everywhere he went references were asked for. Finally he gave the names of former employers and in due time returned for a decision. Some of the letters were read to him in which he was praised very highly, and his work and loyalty greatly lauded. The old man's eyes opened wide with surprise and pleasure as he remarked, "Well, Ah declar', ef I had a-knowed Ah wus such a good nigger as dat Ah shure 'nuff would have got more pay."

Job of Breadwinning Cramping to Genius

When Homer smote his lyre he was probably inspired by an urge more noble than hunger. But in more modern times there has been an incessant lament on the part of men of genius whose expression has been hampered by the necessity of degrading their muse to the position of breadwinner. Dostoebski, the great Russian writer, gives striking testimony of this in letters, writes the Forum.

"I know I have it in me to write great books," he said—"books and stories in which I would condense all my thoughts, all my observations of existence and its deceptions, blighted ambitions and false pleasures. But I cannot do it.

"Who will realize, who has not gone through it, the feelings of a man anxiously waiting for the postman to bring him just enough to live on for a few days, and his disappointment when that postman fails to put in an appearance? And yet this is what I am enduring every single day of my existence. How can I labor for hire only, sell for cash my literary faculties and abilities without these faculties undergoing complete deterioration?"

Parson Was Handicapped

The local all-round sportsman met the vicar, who was returning home with his fishing tackle. The sportsman, who prided himself on being a great angler, and often said so, inquired:

"Hello, vicar! Any luck?"

"Yes," replied the vicar, tapping his basket. "I have a trout in here—a pound and a half—that I pulled out from the lower brook."

"Oh, that's nothing!" bragged the other. "I've caught dozens of fish of two pounds and over in that stream."

"Ah, but you have the advantage of me," complained the vicar.

"Advantage, vicar?" exclaimed the sporty one. "Same brook, and you have better gear!"

"I know that," retorted the reverend gentleman. "But you just remember that I am a parson and you're not."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

CAPT. FAWCETT IN ANNUAL BUFFALO HUNT

WALTER J. HILL, FRANK TURGEON OF ST. PAUL IN PARTY

HUNT STAGED AT SCOTTY PHILLIPS RANCH NEAR PIERRE, S. D.

(By United Press)

Pierre, S. D., Dec. 8. — Modern sportsmen emulating early pioneers are being filmed west of the Missouri River Valley near here, where a herd of 1,000 buffalo roams.

They are participants in the annual buffalo hunt as guests of Scotty Phillips, rancher, who owns more buffalo than anyone else on earth.

When it comes to the problem of winter feeding annually Phillips invites in sportsmen from about the country to kill off the surplus animals. They secure the hides and heads for trophies and some of the watchers secure cheap buffalo meat for a few days.

Walter J. Hill, Capt. "Billy" Fawcett of Breezy Point, famous Minnesota resort, Frank E. Turgeon of St. Paul and others were in the party which arrived Sunday to start the kill.

WRIGLEY COMPANY IN LITIGATION

ORDERED TO PAY HUGE SUM FOR ALLEGED INFRINGEMENT OF PATENT

(By United Press)

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Judge J. H. Wilkerson in federal court here today ordered the William Wrigley, Jr., company, chewing gum manufacturers, to pay $1,471,101.37 to the L. P. Larson company, competitors, for infringement on the Larson company patent. The amount is supposed to represent profits by the Wrigley company made on the sale of Doublemint chewing gum from 1914 to 1918 The court held the name constituted an infringement on the Larson patent name of "Wintermint."

The Master in Chancery had formerly awarded Larson $2,860,000 on his claims. Judge Wilkerson reduced this amount by charging Larson with the Wrigley advertising bill on Doublemint.

ORIENTALS, BORN IN HAWAII, WANT TO COME TO U. S.

(By United Press)

Washington, Dec. 8.—Recognition of the right of American citizens born in the Territory of Hawaii to pass without interference from Hawaii to any other part of the United States will be urged upon the American government, the Governor of Hawaii declared in his annual report made to the Secretary of the Interior today.

There are thousands of orientals in Hawaii who having been born there are technically American citizens but who have not been allowed in the past to migrate to the mainland of the United States. The bureau of immigration has interpreted immigration legislation enacted by congress to bar the immigration of orientals born in Hawaii to this country.

The Hawaiian governor's report points out that this restraint is regarded by American citizens or oriental ancestory as discrimination.

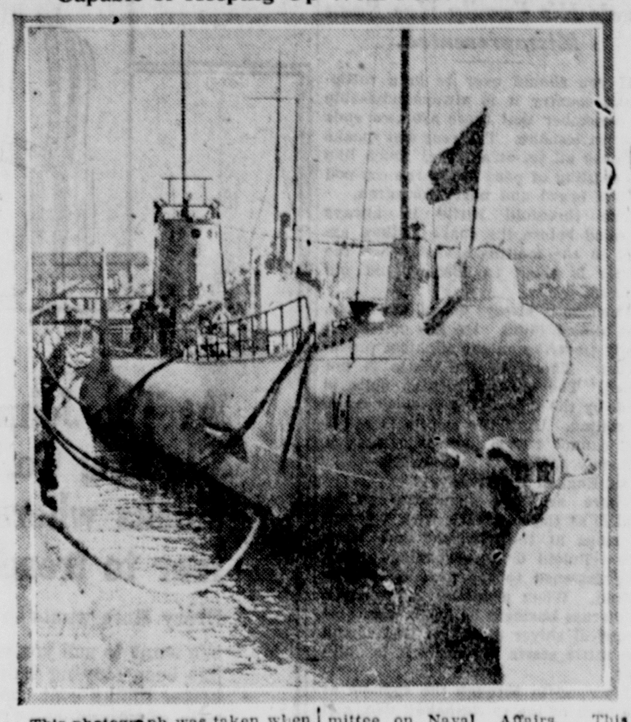

General health and industrial conditions in Hawaii have been satisfactory throughout the year, the report said. The two largest industries—sugar and pineapples—have produced the largest crops on record, and the products have been sold at fair prices.

The total trade between the Territory of Hawaii and the mainland of the United States amounted to $178,816, 499. Hawaii sold products in mainland markets amounting to $103,000,000 and bought from the mainland centers products valued at $69,000,000. Hawaii's trade with foreign countries amounted to $10,575,289.

Cookery and Slang in Odd Relationship

Why the business of the cook should be used as a vehicle of scorn and revenge is a mystery of our mysterious language.

We boast that we "have settled his hash" when we have "squashed" a man and when counsel very severely cross-examines a witness, or a mistress gives a servant what is commonly called "a piece of her mind," we say that both got "a jolly good roasting." If anyone has been thoroughly bamboozled or made a fool of we say he has been "done brown."

Why do we say that certain circumstances or happenings have put a man "into a pretty stew," or that a certain young man has "got himself into boiling water," which almost certainly refers to the dropping of some living animal, like the lobster, into the pot? And why do we refer to some one who has shown a lack of intelligence as only half baked?"

The phrase "I've cooked his goose" has an ancient origin. When Eric, king of Sweden, reached a certain town with very few soldiers, the enemy hung out a goose for him to shoot. Finding, however, that it was no matter for jest, the townsfolk sent heralds to learn what he wanted. His reply was: "To cook your goose for you."—London Tit-Bits.

Calvaries of Paris Are Rapidly Passing

Slowly the calvaries of Paris are vanishing. The old walls on which penitence and adoration erected them have crumbled, have been swept away, and the new walls know no calvaries. Here and there, however, writes "F. G. H." in the continental edition of the London Mail, the great and sorrowful symbol of the Christian faith may still be seen.

In remote corners, just out of the swift current of the city's life it stands unheeded by the busy crowds. Only the birds sometimes flutter round it, and in the manner of some medieval legend, we might believe the feathered things cared for something that humanity had almost forgotten. Of such calvaries one may be found at the corner of the Rue d'Aubervilliers and the Rue de l'Evangile.

It has its place not in one of the loveliest parts of the great city, and we might be disposed to question the work itself from the standpoint of mere art. But there it stands, and a creeper droops half caressingly around the head of it. It breaks suddenly the level contour of an ugly wall. And sometimes it may seem that nothing was ever broken in a manner more wonderful than this poor wall is broken by the dolorous calvary.

Musical Instruments

Certain musical instruments are used almost entirely by one sex, others by both. The harp is largely a woman's instrument, but when men do take it up they show marked ability to master it. The piano is very evenly divided between the sexes. Brass instruments are played mainly by men, ukuleles by women. The banjo is a man's instrument, while mandolins are well divided between the sexes. The saxophone, the most popular of all instruments at the present time, is played by both men and women.—John Howe in the American Magazine.

A possible eagle on the course of the Tallahassee Country club was made impossible by a real eagle, the big bird swooping down on the eighth green to seize a golf ball, as it was trickling in the general direction of the cup, says an Associated Press dispatch from Tallahassee, Fla. Frederick C. Elliot was the victim and gained scant comfort from the assurance that the eagle was "an agency outside the match" and the incident could not be held "a rub of the green."

THEY'VE been sending their letters to her this year—the women of America. Their hearts are set on one gift—they call it the "Miracle of Monday."

It's the blessing and relief of a washer that washes 50 lbs. of dry clothes in sixty fleeting minutes (twice the capacity of ordinary washers)—tubful after tubful, as quickly as a woman can wring them out. And mark you, sparkling, hygienically clean—and in addition, it eliminates that most trying task, the handrubbing of cuffs, wristbands and collars.

And these are only some of the wonders of the Gyrafoam principle, that genius soul of the Maytag Washer. No other washer has it.

Prosperity and Gasoline

Genuine prosperity is with us when all men are employed creating new wealth—new merchandise—which is passed to the consuming public at prices which give them full value for the money spent.

New wealth is active wealth and active wealth, like active labor, is that which is employed making the world a better, happier place in which to live.

The man who owns an oil well is not prosperous unless there is an active demand for his oil. The mere possession of oil signifies nothing—it is of no profit. It is valuable only when it is put to use.

The main function of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is to make oil usable and to put the finished products where people can get them without effort.

By bringing oil products within the reach of everyone, at prices low enough to make them available to all, this Company creates new wealth and makes it active and usable.

A gallon of gasoline manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has a definite economic value, because it represents a potential service when put to use in a running motor.

The power—the service—latent in this gasoline will propel your car 8 to 22 miles in the pursuit of business or pleasure.

In using it you derive pleasure or profit—or both—and by using it you are adding to the general prosperity—by releasing a definite amount of capital for further use.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) serves you through its scientific discoveries, through its progressive use of chemical knowledge, through its efficient refinery administration, through its modern business organization, through its forward-looking labor policy, and through the high quality and wide distribution of its products.

All these functions of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) are at the service of every one who needs and buys a gallon of gasoline. The man who drives a Ford commands the immense resources of this organization as truly as does the man who operates a fleet of trucks.

---this time they wrote to Mrs. SANTA CLAUS

THEY'VE been sending their letters to her this year—the women of America. Their hearts are set on one gift—they call it the "Miracle of Monday."

It's the blessing and relief of a washer that washes 50 lbs. of dry clothes in sixty fleeting minutes (twice the capacity of ordinary washers)—tubful after tubful, as quickly as a woman can wring them out. And mark you, sparkling, hygienically clean—and in addition, it eliminates that most trying task, the handrubbing of cuffs, wristbands and collars.

And these are only some of the wonders of the Gyrafoam principle, that genius soul of the Maytag Washer. No other washer has it.

Make no mistake about the gift that's "wished for" this Christmas. Think of the Mondays that are to come. Your wife or your mother needs the Maytag—more perhaps than you may think.

It's a MAYTAG

Prosperity and Gasoline

Genuine prosperity is with us when all men are employed creating new wealth—new merchandise—which is passed to the consuming public at prices which give them full value for the money spent.

New wealth is active wealth and active wealth, like active labor, is that which is employed making the world a better, happier place in which to live.

The man who owns an oil well is not prosperous unless there is an active demand for his oil. The mere possession of oil signifies nothing—it is of no profit. It is valuable only when it is put to use.

The main function of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is to make oil usable and to put the finished products where people can get them without effort.

By bringing oil products within the reach of everyone, at prices low enough to make them available to all, this Company creates new wealth and makes it active and usable.

A gallon of gasoline manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has a definite economic value, because it represents a potential service when put to use in a running motor.

The power—the service—latent in this gasoline will propel your car 8 to 22 miles in the pursuit of business or pleasure.

In using it you derive pleasure or profit—or both—and by using it you are adding to the general prosperity—by releasing a definite amount of capital for further use.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) serves you through its scientific discoveries, through its progressive use of chemical knowledge, through its efficient refinery administration, through its modern business organization, through its forward-looking labor policy, and through the high quality and wide distribution of its products.

All these functions of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) are at the service of every one who needs and buys a gallon of gasoline. The man who drives a Ford commands the immense resources of this organization as truly as does the man who operates a fleet of trucks.

MINNESOTA MAN, 52, TAKEN WITH GIRL, 13

PILLAGER CHILD POSES AS HIS DAUGHTER; BOTH CONFESS AFTER ARREST

Walker, Minn., Dec. 8.—Sheriff L. G. Morical of Cass county left today for Farmington, Mo., to bring back J. J. Graham, alias Frank Blair, 52 years old, who is alleged to have abducted the 13-year-old daughter of his landlady at Pillager, Minn., last July. Graham and the girl were arrested at Farmington, Thursday, and though the girl will be sent back to her parents, Graham will be charged with statutory offense..... He has waived extradition, Sheriff Morical declared.

Bonne Terre, Mo., Dec. 8.—J. J. Graham, alias Frank Blair of Pillager, Minn., was arrested in Flat River, Mo., by Deputy Sheriffs William Washer and Bart Walker of this city on a charge of abduction and the seduction of Alenia Goodrich of Pillager, 13 years old, concluding a chase by detectives from three states that began in July.

Was Boarder at Home

Graham was for years a boarder at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Goodrich of Pillager, Minn., during which time he had obtained the complete confidence of the parents and when Graham advised his landlady that he was about to leave Pillager to seek work in St. Paul, he incidentally mentioned that if the parents desired he would take the little girl to the home of her aunt in St. Paul at her request.

The parents consented after being advised that this could be accomplished without expense to them. After several weeks' absence during which period the girl's parents had received no word, a letter was written to the sister in St. Paul who advised that she had not seen Alenia.

The hunt for Graham then began.

Detectives traced him to various points in Minnesota and Illinois, but finally lost trace of him at Cairo, Ill., late in September.

The chief of police at Cairo broadcast a description of Graham and the girl who was posing as his daughter. Sheriff Hunt of St. Francois county posted this notice in his office and it came to the attention of Deputy Sheriffs Washer and Walker, who recognized the photo as a man employed in the building trades in the Lead Belt and working under the name of Frank Blair.

Confesses to Crime

This morning Blair was traced to his place of abode and after considerable effort a confession was obtained from him. The girl was taken in charge by the officers and after hours of constant denial, finally confessed to mistreatment before she had left the home of her parents. She said she lived with him since leaving the home of her parents because he had bought her so many nice clothes and provided such splendid entertainment for her.

The girl is being housed in the sheriff's home pending the arrival of Minnesota officers who have been advised of the arrest of Graham and are en route for their prisoner. Graham admitted he is 52 years old.

On his way to jail he told the girl "I will go to jail for this, but when I come out you will be old enough so that I can marry you."

Otherwise he showed no repentance for his deed except to advise the officers that they had spoiled a perfectly happy existence for both.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Bebe Daniels and Tom Moore in the Paramount Picture "Dangerous Money"

"Dangerous Money" is Bebe's Latest

Her millions brought fine clothes, travel, adventure, excitement, but they played a sorry trick on love.

Thus Bebe Danield finds herself as Adele Clark in her new Paramount picture, "Dangerous Money," showing at the New Park tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday, with everything that money can buy, everything, that is, except love, for Tim Sullivan is only a hard working contracting engineer and—well, remember how you used to say to yourself, "Gee, but I wish someone would only leave me a million dollars, then I'd be the happiest person going!" But you wouldn't. Anyway, Bebe Daniels wasn't and a trip down to the New Park will show you why—when the old bankroll comes in the front door love goes out the back.

"Dangerous Money" is Bebe Daniels' first Paramount starring production. Tom Moore, as Tim Sullivan, has the leading man's role opposite the star.

Ramon Novarro, Wallace Beery, Enid Bennett Leads

The climax of Fred Niblo's "The Red Lily," the Metro-Goldwyn picture which opened at the Lyceum Theatre yesterday for a two-day run, comes when the hero of the story, played by Ramon Novarro, recognizes a woman who has brought him in from the street as his own lost sweetheart, Marise, whom he has sought for years. Finding her unfaithful ,he strikes her down with his fist in a spasm of fury and anguish; and what happens thereafter concludes one of the most deeply stirring tales ever told on the screen.

The story is laid, for the most part, in the Parisian underworld. The boy's father, in a Brittany village, has disinherited his son on learning of the boy's love for Marise, the daughter of a humble shoemaker. The pair flee to Paris to marry, are separated by peculiar circumstances, and thrust alone upon the city.

"The Red Lily" is one of the finest film productions ever seen in Brainerd and has its last showings at the Lyceum tonight.

Makes Up Four Hours for Film

While making "Secrets," which will be shown at the New Park in the near future, Norma Talmadge spent four hours each day making up as an aged woman for the final sequences of her photoplay.

Norma arrived early at the studio and with the assistance of George Westmbore, her make-up artist, spent the better part of each morning preparing for her appearance on the set.

Tibetan Animal Men Puzzle the Learned

Animal men living in rocks and caves are reported to have been seen near Pharijong, Tibet. These beings, called by the Tibetans "Mi-gu," or "Abominable Snowmen," are supposed to be men, their bodies being covered with hair, and long matted locks hang over their shoulders. Word was brought in that two of these creatures, half animal, half man, had killed several yak and partially devoured them. The particular description given by one who said he saw them was as follows: About six feet tall, the body covered with black hair like a bear, with a red face like that of a monkey. He has only been seen erect, not on all fours, and walks like a man. Instances of the appearance of these creatures are nowadays fairly frequent in Tibet, and until one is captured the question of their species must remain unsolved. It seems hardly possible that a new species of animal can exist in what is nowadays fairly well-known country. The Tibetans believe they are devils, but the Tibetan invariably gives that name to anything he does not understand in the world of natural history.

Australian Winds

Australia, in addition to the Willie-Willies, the western gales that sweep the southern coast, and the cyclones off the east coast, has peculiar little winds all its own. For example, the Brickfielders, a name that aptly describes the hot, dusty winds blowing from the interior deserts, which suddenly shift around to the opposite direction and are then the cold Southerly Busters, another appropriate term. The writer remembers once lying at Newcastle, New South Wales, in a sailing vessel, moored to the wharf with heavy chains. Most of the ships broke away when the Buster struck them, and drifted across the harbor. His ship held on, but a little chapel blew over her, to the far side of the water, littering the decks with whitewash and hymn books.—New York Times.

Doing His Duty

Bobby was to give a short recitation in the program to be given on Christmas eve in the church. The mother had spent much time and attention coaching her small son, not only in his lines, but his bow at the beginning. Bobby was quick to learn and on the night of the program he marched on to the platform amid great applause.

He started faultlessly, but when he reached his second verse, he stopped suddenly and smiled broadly.

"Oh, please excuse me," he said, "but I forgot to bend." Then he made his bow.

Habits of Storm Petrels

The storm petrels lay their eggs and rear their young on the shores of the North Atlantic. The nesting season is about the only time these birds are ever seen on the land. They are among the smallest web-footed birds and feed on mollusks which rise to the surface. When the birds are searching for food they seem to be walking or running on the water. Hence they are called "petrels," which means "little Peter," referring to the experience of St. Peter on the Sea of Galilee as related in Matthew 14:29.—Pathfinder Magazine.

"OLD MAN RATTLER" TELLS LIFE STORY

Feels His Family Has Been Misrepresented.

If you should ever be in a rattlesnake country it is always advisable to remember that there are two ends to a rattlesnake. The rear end speaks in tones all its own. Very much like the rattling of peas in a large dry-pod—once heard and never forgotten.

The threefold rattle is always sounded before the snake strikes, except in the molting season when the rattler is about to discard his old jacket.

Then he is always dopey, miserable, and almost blind. He lies coiled, all ready to strike on the slightest provocation. Therefore the rattle is not heard. The musical rattling noise is made by the threefold movement made in coiling. Until the reptile is coiled—it cannot strike, and in striking it can only spring its own length.

An English writer says:

There are five handsome rattlesnakes at the zoo, each with a stump of rings at the eloquent end, rings like celluloid or bone-shavings; each ring fastened to the next by a tiny button. When a rattler is prepared to discuss business he sends a sort of electrical shiver along his frame, and the rattle starts at once. It is quite loud.

I peeped in through the spyhole at the back of the rattlesnakes' den, and started the music, while the biggest told me interesting facts about his family.

"Such a lot of foolish things have been written about my rattle," he said. "Some say I lure birds with it, the birds thinking it is the hum and buzz of insects. What nonsense! Birds are not such fools.

"Then another says I terrify my prey with it. Wrong again.

"Somebody else is of opinion that it is a love song; my way of going courting. Do I look like a lovelorn snake at this moment?

"As a matter of fact, I am really angry, and I'm doing this to frighten you. Not that I really wish to bite. I'm a bit frightened myself.

"You know, of course, that I have poison fangs in my mouth, and a reserve supply of sprouts waiting to become fangs if one of the two in use gets broken. They are just like hypodermic syringes, and when the fangs strike the poison comes out. That, of course, is well known. Now I will tell you a secret.

"My supply of poison is limited. I have to be careful of it. That is why I do not wish to strike unless necessary. It is better for me to frighten enemies away.

"So I would rather not bite if you will go away. I feel like the fond father who tells his son: 'My lad, it will hurt me to thrash you as much as it hurts you.' Of course, no son ever believes it. Neither will you about my bite."

I lowered a stick toward him. In a flash the rattler's head struck at it. I think he was disappointed at the result.

Life is so full of deceptions

Educating Workers

The first to advocate and put into practice the education of workingmen in the application of science to the practical arts was Dr. George Birback, who was born in Yorkshire, England, 147 years ago. He was the son of a banker and educated for the practice of medicine. While professor of the Andersonian Institution at Glasgow, Scotland, he established popular lectures for artisans, thus laying the foundation for the mechanics' institutions which later on came into existence all over Great Britain.

The first lecture at Glasgow attracted 75 artisans who went away so enthusiastic that some 200 men attended the second lecture and 500 were on hand at the next. Later on Doctor Birback's grateful pupils presented him with a silver cup as a token of their esteem. He extended the course to London, and a permanent mechanics' institution was founded with Birback as president.

Not Her Fault

At a banquet in Washington, Secretary Mellon told the following story:

"Marjorie," said the secretary, "is the only girl among several children, all older than herself. Consequently, when they all go to grandpa's ranch to play, she wants to romp and ride and keep up to the boys in all their activities, but is often restrained by her mother, saying: 'Remember, dear, you're a girl.'

"Finally, one day, Marjorie broke out in rebellion and cried:

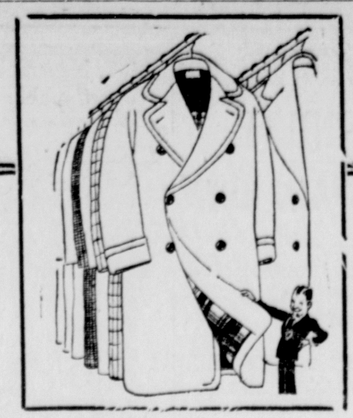

"'If I'd picked myself out, I'd never been what I am.'"—Los Angeles Times.

Ideas of Mount Ararat

It is reported that American capital is interested in transforming Mount Ararat into a pleasure resort. A railroad is to be built to its summit and shelter and entertainment for tourists are to be provided. Few mountains in the world are as familiar by name as Ararat, because of its Biblical associations, but most people's mental picture of it includes the ark resting at the exact peak and its immensely varied population disembarking while the waters of the flood recede below.

World's Largest Tunnel

The largest tunnel in the world is the Shandaken tunnel, in the Catskill mountains, which carries water to New York city. It is 18.1 miles long, 11½ feet high, and 10¼ feet wide.

Makes Up Four Hours for Film

While making "Secrets," which will be shown at the New Park in the near future, Norma Talmadge spent four hours each day making up as an aged woman for the final sequences of her photoplay.

Norma arrived early at the studio and with the assistance of George Westmbore, her make-up artist, spent the better part of each morning preparing for her appearance on the set.

Tibetan Animal Men Puzzle the Learned

Animal men living in rocks and caves are reported to have been seen near Pharijong, Tibet. These beings, called by the Tibetans "Mi-gu," or "Abominable Snowmen," are supposed to be men, their bodies being covered with hair, and long matted locks hang over their shoulders. Word was brought in that two of these creatures, half animal, half man, had killed several yak and partially devoured them. The particular description given by one who said he saw them was as follows: About six feet tall, the body covered with black hair like a bear, with a red face like that of a monkey. He has only been seen erect, not on all fours, and walks like a man. Instances of the appearance of these creatures are nowadays fairly frequent in Tibet, and until one is captured the question of their species must remain unsolved. It seems hardly possible that a new species of animal can exist in what is nowadays fairly well-known country. The Tibetans believe they are devils, but the Tibetan invariably gives that name to anything he does not understand in the world of natural history.

Australian Winds

Australia, in addition to the Willie-Willies, the western gales that sweep the southern coast, and the cyclones off the east coast, has peculiar little winds all its own. For example, the Brickfielders, a name that aptly describes the hot, dusty winds blowing from the interior deserts, which suddenly shift around to the opposite direction and are then the cold Southerly Busters, another appropriate term. The writer remembers once lying at Newcastle, New South Wales, in a sailing vessel, moored to the wharf with heavy chains. Most of the ships broke away when the Buster struck them, and drifted across the harbor. His ship held on, but a little chapel blew over her, to the far side of the water, littering the decks with whitewash and hymn books.—New York Times.

Doing His Duty

Bobby was to give a short recitation in the program to be given on Christmas eve in the church. The mother had spent much time and attention coaching her small son, not only in his lines, but his bow at the beginning. Bobby was quick to learn and on the night of the program he marched on to the platform amid great applause.

He started faultlessly, but when he reached his second verse, he stopped suddenly and smiled broadly.

"Oh, please excuse me," he said, "but I forgot to bend." Then he made his bow.

Habits of Storm Petrels

The storm petrels lay their eggs and rear their young on the shores of the North Atlantic. The nesting season is about the only time these birds are ever seen on the land. They are among the smallest web-footed birds and feed on mollusks which rise to the surface. When the birds are searching for food they seem to be walking or running on the water. Hence they are called "petrels," which means "little Peter," referring to the experience of St. Peter on the Sea of Galilee as related in Matthew 14:29.—Pathfinder Magazine.

"OLD MAN RATTLER" TELLS LIFE STORY

Feels His Family Has Been Misrepresented.

If you should ever be in a rattlesnake country it is always advisable to remember that there are two ends to a rattlesnake. The rear end speaks in tones all its own. Very much like the rattling of peas in a large dry-pod—once heard and never forgotten.

The threefold rattle is always sounded before the snake strikes, except in the molting season when the rattler is about to discard his old jacket.

Then he is always dopey, miserable, and almost blind. He lies coiled, all ready to strike on the slightest provocation. Therefore the rattle is not heard. The musical rattling noise is made by the threefold movement made in coiling. Until the reptile is coiled—it cannot strike, and in striking it can only spring its own length.

An English writer says:

There are five handsome rattlesnakes at the zoo, each with a stump of rings at the eloquent end, rings like celluloid or bone-shavings; each ring fastened to the next by a tiny button. When a rattler is prepared to discuss business he sends a sort of electrical shiver along his frame, and the rattle starts at once. It is quite loud.

I peeped in through the spyhole at the back of the rattlesnakes' den, and started the music, while the biggest told me interesting facts about his family.

"Such a lot of foolish things have been written about my rattle," he said. "Some say I lure birds with it, the birds thinking it is the hum and buzz of insects. What nonsense! Birds are not such fools.

"Then another says I terrify my prey with it. Wrong again.

"Somebody else is of opinion that it is a love song; my way of going courting. Do I look like a lovelorn snake at this moment?

"As a matter of fact, I am really angry, and I'm doing this to frighten you. Not that I really wish to bite. I'm a bit frightened myself.

"You know, of course, that I have poison fangs in my mouth, and a reserve supply of sprouts waiting to become fangs if one of the two in use gets broken. They are just like hypodermic syringes, and when the fangs strike the poison comes out. That, of course, is well known. Now I will tell you a secret.

"My supply of poison is limited. I have to be careful of it. That is why I do not wish to strike unless necessary. It is better for me to frighten enemies away.

"So I would rather not bite if you will go away. I feel like the fond father who tells his son: 'My lad, it will hurt me to thrash you as much as it hurts you.' Of course, no son ever believes it. Neither will you about my bite."

I lowered a stick toward him. In a flash the rattler's head struck at it. I think he was disappointed at the result.

Life is so full of deceptions

Educating Workers

The first to advocate and put into practice the education of workingmen in the application of science to the practical arts was Dr. George Birback, who was born in Yorkshire, England, 147 years ago. He was the son of a banker and educated for the practice of medicine. While professor of the Andersonian institution at Glasgow, Scotland, he established popular lectures for artisans, thus laying the foundation for the mechanics' institutions which later on came into existence all over Great Britain.

The first lecture at Glasgow attracted 75 artisans who went away so enthusiastic that some 200 men attended the second lecture and 500 were on hand at the next. Later on Doctor Birback's grateful pupils presented him with a silver cup as a token of their esteem. He extended the course to London, and a permanent mechanics' institution was founded with Birback as president.

Not Her Fault

At a banquet in Washington, Secretary Mellon told the following story:

"Marjorie," said the secretary, "is the only girl among several children, all older than herself. Consequently, when they all go to grandpa's ranch to play, she wants to romp and ride and keep up to the boys in all their activities, but is often restrained by her mother, saying: 'Remember, dear, you're a girl.'

"Finally, one day, Marjorie broke out in rebellion and cried:

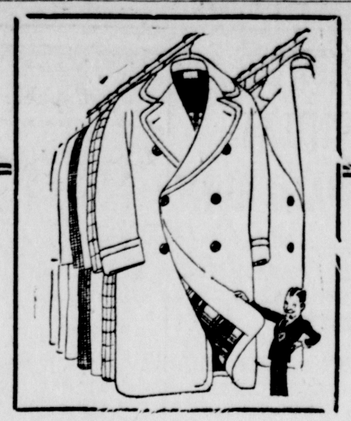

"'If I'd picked myself out, I'd never been what I am.'"—Los Angeles Times.

Ideas of Mount Ararat

It is reported that American capital is interested in transforming Mount Ararat into a pleasure resort. A railroad is to be built to its summit and shelter and entertainment for tourists are to be provided. Few mountains in the world are as familiar by name as Ararat, because of its Biblical associations, but most people's mental picture of it includes the ark resting at the exact peak and its immensely varied population disembarking while the waters of the flood recede below.

World's Largest Tunnel

The largest tunnel in the world is the Shandaken tunnel, in the Catskill mountains, which carries water to New York city. It is 18.1 miles long, 11½ feet high, and 10¼ feet wide.

LEGION PRESERVES RARE COMRADESHIP

Michael Murray, St. Cloud, Chief Speaker at Local Legion Pep Banquet

DUTY TO DISABLED MEN

American Legion Was First to Fight For Hospitals For Such Buddies

Action is the by-word of the American Legion, Michael Murray, of St. Cloud, told those who attended the Pep Banquet, held by the local post on Saturday evening at Elks hall. The Legion had its birth in the spirit of loyalty and high ideals, continued the speaker, and if every ex-service man does not become a member of the organization he is not playing fair to the hundreds of thousands who lost their lives in the great war, and in whose name the Legion was founded.

"We must preserve the comradeship that grew out of the army life" said Mr. Murray, "and should be glad now that we have a splendid organization such as the American Legion in which we can perpetuate that comradeship, and in which we have the opportunity to especially help our disabled buddies."

"The American Legion feels that it owes a great duty to the disabled service man, and our organizaton was first in fighting for hospitals in which he could be given the care and attention that would restore him to his rightful place among his fellowmen," said the speaker, who told of visiting such a hospital at St. Cloud as a representative of his post, and seeing first hand the terrible results which the war had inflicted upon many that it had disabled.

The Legion was born out of a great war, is composed of fighting men, and is a fighting organization now, fighting for the welfare and best interests of its members, said Mr. Murray, who stated that it was through the strenuous efforts of the state department that the legislature gave the ex-service men of Minnesota their bonus, and that it was the work of Legionaires that put through congress the adjusted compensation bill. The Legion will ever be on the lookout for the ex-service man's welfare, and he in return should show his appreciation of this interest by becoming a member of the organzation.

One of the great duties falling upon the American Legion is that of protecting the citizenship of this country, said Mr. Murray, and to teach the proper respect for law and order, together with the responsibility that citizenship places upon each individual.

"There are two extremes of government, one the absolute monarchy typified in the old Russian czar-rule, and its opposite as put into practice by Soviet Russia today," continued the speaker. "Between these two extremes there lies an ideal democracy, a form of government which the American Legion should strive to perfect, bringing our citizenship to its highest form, and instilling a patriotism never before reached."

Mr. Murray is an eloquent orator who brings his message home with strong arguments that leave no doubt as to his thorough understanding of the subject. His remarks were repeatedly applauded, and he held the close attention of each one of his hearers. Amusing stories and incidents were interspersed throughout the address, and showed that the speaker was gifted with the power to carry his audience from the serious to the humorous at will.

A number of Legion men from the Crosby-Ironton post were in attendance at the banquet, coming with Attorney F. E. Murphy, of Clarence A. Nelson Post, No. 154, and district commander of this section of Minnesota. Mr. Murphy addressed the diners on the subject of "Membership," urging the local post to cooperate with the state-wide movement to bring all ex-scervice men into the organization. He asked the Brainerd post to set as its goal for the year the securing of 200 new members.

"The American Legion has two sacred duties to perform," said the district commander. "The first is to care for the disabled veteran, the second to look after the orphans of those who lost their lives in the service of their country. There are many problems needing the attention of the Legion at present, there will be many others in the future, so that the organization will always have a big program and an important work to perform." The speaker urged the post to find out the things needed in this community and then to set to work to accomplish these things.

E. G. Roth acted as toastmaster in a very creditable manner. Community singing was interspersed with the address and short talks, rounding out a pleasant and profitable evening. Local speakers called upon included George Sweet, newly elected commander of Carl Sidney Hanson post, and Kirk Smith, past commander. Both expressed their belief that the local Legion is destined to do a great work in the community and that there should be little difficulty experienced in adding materially to the membership as rapidly as the ex-service man realizes the aims, ideals and purposes of the organization.

The pep banquet was a decided success from the viewpoint of the inner man as well as the mental. The piece-de-resistasce was roast wild duck, done to a brown turn, and served in generous portions together with cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes and cabbage salad. In addition to this a savory baked ham was brought in and quickly disappeared under the a direct attack of the army of diners. Ice cream, cake and coffee and smokes, brought the meal to a fitting close. Ex-service men, not yet Legionaires, were guests of the local post.

Claude McClean, living in Maple Grove township, a rehabilitation man, and a member of Carl Sidney Hanson post, entertained his comrades with a series of tumbling stunts which would have done credit to vaudeville artists.

This pep banquet was the closing feature of a week's intensive membership drive on the part of the local post. The Legionaires were divided into two opposing teams, captained by Kirk Smith and Earl O'Brien. Both worked hard to secure the most new members, the honors going to Captain T'Brien's Invincibles. As a penalty for losing the contest, Captain Smith's pirates were required to do kitchen police duty at the banquet, and served their more fortunate comrades in a manner that showed that they had not forgotten a similar training received in the army.

The Brainerd post has a very full program of activities outlined for the coming season, and with the interest and enthusiasm shown at Saturday's pep banquet, will carry this program through to a most successful finish.

RETURNABLE JANUARY 5

Special Venire of Jurors Called That Date For Adjourned Term of District Court

In giving the list of the special venire of jurors, called for the adjourned term of the district court, the Dispatch on Saturday stated that this venire was returnable on Wednesday, January 7th, as reported on the official notice which this paper received.

Clerk of the Courts W. A. M. Johnstone states that this date is an error, and that the jury is called for Monday, January 5th, at 10 o'clock a. m., two days earlier than the notice published in the Dispatch.

This adjourned term is ordered to take care of the many cases remaining from the November term. At that time only the criminal cases were called for trial, and not all of them were completed, so that the adjourned term in January will complete the criminal calendar and take up the civil calendar.

KAPPA DELPHIAN

Chapter Held Meeting Saturday And Closed With Study of Assyria And Babylonia

Kappa Delphian Chapter held its regular meeting Saturday afternoon and closed up the study of the early history of Assyria and Babylonia with comparisons with that of Egypt finished in October.

Every meeting shows fewer absentees and more members developing their willingness to take part and taking that part well.

"Education is gleaning from men and books and laboratories from field and forest and whispering wind; but it is more: it is learning promptness and thoughtfulness, kindness and helpfulness, and every form of purity; it is the mastering of mind and spirit, appetite and passion, though and word and glance; it is knowing that nothing but service brings worthy living, that selfishness means sin, that courage lies in being right. Education is the implanting of good habits, the acquirement of efficiency, the development of twenty-four carat character"—Thomas C. Blaisdell.

This is what Delphian means to those who have taken it up in earnest. We have a very democratic group in Brainerd, a group that will welcome you as a member if you desire to conform to the ideals expressed by Blaisdell. Next meeting January 3, 1925.

A Frank Explanation As to Why We Are

Making Such Low Clearance Prices Now

Change is constant. Progress demands it. Methods in vogue twenty-five years ago are passe today. This is particularly true in merchandising of women wear. Figuratively, yesterday styles are out of date tomorrow. Dame Fashion was never more fickle and women demand that their store shall follow her style suggestions. And this is as much true of hosiery, underwear and handkerchiefs as it is of garments or millinery.

We have a plan which we shall put into operation which we know will permit us to offer you as many new ideas in merchandise as you will care to have. But, to it, we must close much of the merchandise in our present stocks. We are doing it now that we may be properly prepared for the next season. And what an advantage is is to you. You are now buying as you do at no other time of the year and these bargains will save you many a dollar. Watch our advertisements. Visit our store often. We are putting out new bargains every day.

And Another Word About Our Basement Store

We have reopened our basement salesroom to display many of these bargains and to show Christmas toys. We shall continue to use our basement store for underpriced merchandise. Our new plan will make this the most popular shopping center in Brainerd for those wanting popular priced merchandise. We know you will but like our store better than ever before. Our store is a Brainerd institution devoted to the good of Brainerd in every way. It will serve you as you wish and constantly merit your patronage.

Claude McClean, living in Maple Grove township, a rehabilitation man, and a member of Carl Sidney Hanson post, entertained his comrades with a series of tumbling stunts which would have done credit to vaudeville artists.

This pep banquet was the closing feature of a week's intensive membership drive on the part of the local post. The Legionaires were divided into two opposing teams, captained by Kirk Smith and Earl O'Brien. Both worked hard to secure the most new members, the honors going to Captain T'Brien's Invincibles. As a penalty for losing the contest, Captain Smith's pirates were required to do kitchen police duty at the banquet, and served their more fortunate comrades in a manner that showed that they had not forgotten a similar training received in the army.

The Brainerd post has a very full program of activities outlined for the coming season, and with the interest and enthusiasm shown at Saturday's pep banquet, will carry this program through to a most successful finish.

RETURNABLE JANUARY 5

Special Venire of Jurors Called That Date For Adjourned Term of District Court

In giving the list of the special venire of jurors, called for the adjourned term of the district court, the Dispatch on Saturday stated that this venire was returnable on Wednesday, January 7th, as reported on the official notice which this paper received.

Clerk of the Courts W. A. M. Johnstone states that this date is an error, and that the jury is called for Monday, January 5th, at 10 o'clock a. m., two days earlier than the notice published in the Dispatch.

This adjourned term is ordered to take care of the many cases remaining from the November term. At that time only the criminal cases were called for trial, and not all of them were completed, so that the adjourned term in January will complete the criminal calendar and take up the civil calendar.

KAPPA DELPHIAN

Chapter Held Meeting Saturday And Closed With Study of Assyria And Babylonia

Kappa Delphian Chapter held its regular meeting Saturday afternoon and closed up the study of the early history of Assyria and Babylonia with comparisons with that of Egypt finished in October.

Every meeting shows fewer absentees and more members developing their willingness to take part and taking that part well.

"Education is gleaning from men and books and laboratories from field and forest and whispering wind; but it is more: it is learning promptness and thoughtfulness, kindness and helpfulness, and every form of purity; it is the mastering of mind and spirit, appetite and passion, though and word and glance; it is knowing that nothing but service brings worthy living, that selfishness means sin, that courage lies in being right. Education is the implanting of good habits, the acquirement of efficiency, the development of twenty-four carat character"—Thomas C. Blaisdell.

This is what Delphian means to those who have taken it up in earnest. We have a very democratic group in Brainerd, a group that will welcome you as a member if you desire to conform to the ideals expressed by Blaisdell. Next meeting January 3, 1925.

A Frank Explanation As to Why We Are

Making Such Low Clearance Prices Now

Change is constant. Progress demands it. Methods in vogue twenty-five years ago are passe today. This is particularly true in merchandising of women wear. Figuratively, yesterday styles are out of date tomorrow. Dame Fashion was never more fickle and women demand that their store shall follow her style suggestions. And this is as much true of hosiery, underwear and handkerchiefs as it is of garments or millinery.

We have a plan which we shall put into operation which we know will permit us to offer you as many new ideas in merchandise as you will care to have. But, to it, we must close much of the merchandise in our present stocks. We are doing it now that we may be properly prepared for the next season. And what an advantage is is to you. You are now buying as you do at no other time of the year and these bargains will save you many a dollar. Watch our advertisements. Visit our store often. We are putting out new bargains every day.

And Another Word About Our Basement Store

We have reopened our basement salesroom to display many of these bargains and to show Christmas toys. We shall continue to use our basement store for underpriced merchandise. Our new plan will make this the most popular shopping center in Brainerd for those wanting popular priced merchandise. We know you will but like our store better than ever before. Our store is a Brainerd institution devoted to the good of Brainerd in every way. It will serve you as you wish and constantly merit your patronage.

FARRELL PICKS GIBBONS OVER NORFOLK

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Dec. 8.—Two leading boxers who are tagged as undesirables in most of the managerial note-books, meet tomorrow night in the first important bout of the season and in the most interesting match of the year.

Tom Gibbons, universally recognized as the best light-heavyweight in the world, will meet Kid Norfolk, the Negro champion, in Madison Square Garden in a contest promoted to raise a Christmas Fund for the poor kids of the New York tenements.

Tex Rickard nearly fell off his chair in the Garden tower when he succeeded in making the match for the committee in charge of the charity. For two years he had been trying to get a first-class opponent for Gibbons and for the same length of time he had been trying to get some one to fight Norfolk. Rival managers could not be interested. Gibbons and Norfolk were too tough, Rickard was told in cold talk.

Gibbons, next to Dempsey, is the greatest drawing card in the ring and the committee looked upon him as the best boxer available to make a sure financial success of the show. Gibbons accepted the offer when he was approached and agreed to fight ANYONE in the world.

Mike McTigue, Gene Tunney, Jack Renault, Louis Firpo and Harry Wills were offered the match and they turned it down. Rickard know that to be a fact, but it was not proved publicly until the New York Boxing Commission took a hand.

When the permission of the commission was asked to stage a Gibbons-Norfolk match on the ground that Norfolk was the only fighter willing to meet Gibbons and that Gibbons was the only one who could be found for Norfolk, the commission suggested that it might be able to use its influence in getting a better attraction than Norfolk.

The commission summoned Wills, Renault and Tunney, as outstanding heavyweights, to a conference. "Those fellows all want to fight Dempsey, but they won't fight Gibbons," Rickard said before the conference.

The commission found that to be just the situation. Wills declined on the ground that he hurt his hand in the Firpo fight and wouldn't be able to work for two months.

Renault said he had a sore thumb and couldn't accept the match although he didn't explain what effect the sore hand would have on a match against Romero-Rojas in Boston before the Gibbons date.

Tunney didn't show up at all and when he was approached later he said he would fight Gibbons, only after Gibbons had challenged him. The point being that Gibbons, as a challenger, would have to accept 12½ per cent as his share of the purse.

If Gibbons had challenged Tunney it is quite possible that Tunney would get a sore finger or that he would hide behind the rule giving him six months in which to accept a challenge.

Although he is one of the finest characters that has ever been connected with the boxing racket, Gibbons has been picked out for many attacks by managers of other boxers. Gibbons was panned all over the country for fighting set-ups. His defense that he couldn't get any one to fight him was laughed down as the bunk and a lot of hokum challengers were tossed at him. When he went fifteen rounds against Dempsey and was strong enough to sprint almost a mile from the ring to his cottage, the mugs said that Dempsey had carried him. Anyone who really knows Dempsey knows that he wouldn't pull a punch against his father in the ring.

The real low-down on the Gibbons case was not shown until the commission tried to get an opponent for him. As a result of that attempt it is now a matter of public record that Wills, Renault, Tunney and Firpo are all windbaggers and that they have no just claim to a chance for the heavyweight championship when they are afraid of a light-heavyweight.

Gibbons has done a lot for boxing and he is doing a lot more tomorrow night. Apparently he thinks as much of his profession as he does of the money that he gets from it. He has been stung more than any other big fighter of the generation and it is quite obvious that he isn't one of the commercialized money-grabbing pugs that have almost ruined the business.

Gibbons wouldn't wait to go outside and fight next summer although he might have gotten more money out of it. He didn't sit in a chair like Tunney and dictate how much money his opponent was to get out of the match. It is possible that he doesn't know now how much Norfolk will get for his purse and it's a cinch that he doesn't care.

* * * * * * * * *

Neither Gibbons nor Norfolk will get much more than their purse out of a victory. Possibly the damage that would result from the ostracism by a decisive victory would be much more in dollars than the purse they are to get.

If Gibbons knocks Norfolk out in a short round fight he might just as well retire. If he can't get matches now, he never will be able to get them after a victory over Norfolk. Wills, Renault and Tunney are already known to be afraid of him and they can't be shamed into a meeting with him.

Norfolk would be on the top place of the poison list if he beat Gibbons. It is hard enough for a good colored fighter to get matches and it would be almost impossible for him to get good paying engagements if he should win from the best light-heavyweight in the world.

Gibbons ought to win decisively and then he can have the thankless and fruitless assignment of trying to get a match with even a fair second-rater. Gibbons can't even get two-bit fighters to meet him now because they say he hurts them too much even if they are in the ring only a few minutes.

JONES TO BE RETAINED BY BADGER FACULTY

Madison, Wis., Dec. 8.—The athletic council has no intention of letting Coach Thomas E. Jones leave Wisconsin, Prof. Seth Goodnight, dean of men and member of the council, said today. Dean Goodnight squelched all newspaper reports to the effect that Jones, who has just resigned as athletic director, would not be retained at Wisconsin.

The council's action in accepting Jones' resignation was for the sole purpose of dividing the tremendous responsibilities evolving upon the athletic director. Jones will remain in charge of part of this work, including his duties as track coach, and another man will be sought to take charge of the rest, Goodnight said.

FRED McKAY WINS SNELLING HONORS

St. Paul, Dec. 8.—Fred McKay was the most consistent shooter at the Fort Snelling traps Sunday. He won the regular event with 49 breaks and followed by tying Harris for top honors in the handicap event. He lost out in the shoot-off, however. Maginnis won the shoot-off of last week's handicap tie with R. Fawcett.

RAINBOWS AND Y. M. C. A. PLAY TUESDAY

SECOND GAME OF THE BENEFIT SERIES AT HIGH SCHOOL

OLD HIGH SCHOOL PLAYERS APPEAR IN COMPETING TEAMS

The Rainbows and the Y. M. C. A. will play the second basketball game of the series being arranged for securing new lockers for the Y. M. C. A. when they meet on the high school floor tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Last week the Independents beat the Y. M. C. A. by one point in an overtime game. The Y. M. C. A. players are out to win tomorrow night, and the Rainbows are just as determined to end up on the long end of the score Both teams have been practicing for the contest, and all who come will be assured a good time.

Several old high school players will be seen in the line-ups. The Rainbows have secured the services of such men as Day, Orth, Lowe, Fitzharris, Hagberg and Jones, while the Y. M. C. A. will play with the same line-up that held the Independents last Tuesday, including W. Heikkinen and Hill, forwards; Hess, center, Otto Heikkinen and Laitala, guards

The proceeds of this game will go into the fund for new steel lockers for the Y. M. C. A. Last week the net amount realized was $36.10. Everyone is urged to come out and see the game, and help along in equipping the Y. M. C. A. with one of its greatest needs, new lockers.

Tom Gibbons Finds Appreciative Little Fans in Central Park, Norfolk Bout,

While the St. Paul boxer was preparing for his Madison Square battle with Kid Norfolk, negro light heavyweight champion, he found New York's great park a good place to do some of his outdoor work. The photographer caught him there with some of his little admirers. Tom takes to the kids just as the kids always take to Tom.

WALKER AND MALONE TO BATTLE

BOTH BOXERS PRONOUNCED IN TOP CONDITION

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 8.—Light workouts today completed the training of Mickey Walker, world welterweight champion, and Jock Malone, St. Paul middleweight, who meet here tonight in a 10-round no-decision bout.

Both boxers are in top shape, and as this is their third meeting, with both having won a previous bout, plenty of action is anticipated. A report that Malone's hands were in poor condition caused the Wisconsin Boxing commission to have him examined late yesterday.

Malone's hands were found to be in first class shape. The St. Paul man has a rather small hand for a fighter, the examining physician said.

Walker has not done as much boxing as Malone since his arrival here, but the boxing he has indulged in has proved that his timing is perfect and his wind all that could be asked.

The preliminary events promise plenty of action, and although rearranged since the first announcement was made, offer an attractive card.—Minneapolis Tribune.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.—Advt.

FARRELL PICKS GIBBONS OVER NORFOLK

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Dec. 8.—Two leading boxers who are tagged as undesirables in most of the managerial note-books, meet tomorrow night in the first important bout of the season and in the most interesting match of the year.

Tom Gibbons, universally recognized as the best light-heavyweight in the world, will meet Kid Norfolk, the Negro champion, in Madison Square Garden in a contest promoted to raise a Christmas Fund for the poor kids of the New York tenements.

Tex Rickard nearly fell off his chair in the Garden tower when he succeeded in making the match for the committee in charge of the charity. For two years he had been trying to get a first-class opponent for Gibbons and for the same length of time he had been trying to get some one to fight Norfolk. Rival managers could not be interested. Gibbons and Norfolk were too tough, Rickard was told in cold talk.

Gibbons, next to Dempsey, is the greatest drawing card in the ring and the committee looked upon him as the best boxer available to make a sure financial success of the show. Gibbons accepted the offer when he was approached and agreed to fight ANYONE in the world.

Mike McTigue, Gene Tunney, Jack Renault, Louis Firpo and Harry Wills were offered the match and they turned it down. Rickard know that to be a fact, but it was not proved publicly until the New York Boxing Commission took a hand.

When the permission of the commission was asked to stage a Gibbons-Norfolk match on the ground that Norfolk was the only fighter willing to meet Gibbons and that Gibbons was the only one who could be found for Norfolk, the commission suggested that it might be able to use its influence in getting a better attraction than Norfolk.

The commission summoned Wills, Renault and Tunney, as outstanding heavyweights, to a conference. "Those fellows all want to fight Dempsey, but they won't fight Gibbons," Rickard said before the conference.

The commission found that to be just the situation. Wills declined on the ground that he hurt his hand in the Firpo fight and wouldn't be able to work for two months.

Renault said he had a sore thumb and couldn't accept the match although he didn't explain what effect the sore hand would have on a match against Romero-Rojas in Boston before the Gibbons date.

Tunney didn't show up at all and when he was approached later he said he would fight Gibbons, only after Gibbons had challenged him. The point being that Gibbons, as a challenger, would have to accept 12½ per cent as his share of the purse.

If Gibbons had challenged Tunney it is quite possible that Tunney would get a sore finger or that he would hide behind the rule giving him six months in which to accept a challenge.

Although he is one of the finest characters that has ever been connected with the boxing racket, Gibbons has been picked out for many attacks by managers of other boxers. Gibbons was panned all over the country for fighting set-ups. His defense that he couldn't get any one to fight him was laughed down as the bunk and a lot of hokum challengers were tossed at him. When he went fifteen rounds against Dempsey and was strong enough to sprint almost a mile from the ring to his cottage, the mugs said that Dempsey had carried him. Anyone who really knows Dempsey knows that he wouldn't pull a punch against his father in the ring.

The real low-down on the Gibbons case was not shown until the commission tried to get an opponent for him. As a result of that attempt it is now a matter of public record that Wills, Renault, Tunney and Firpo are all windbaggers and that they have no just claim to a chance for the heavyweight championship when they are afraid of a light-heavyweight.

Gibbons has done a lot for boxing and he is doing a lot more tomorrow night. Apparently he thinks as much of his profession as he does of the money that he gets from it. He has been stung more than any other big fighter of the generation and it is quite obvious that he isn't one of the commercialized money-grabbing pugs that have almost ruined the business.

Gibbons wouldn't wait to go outside and fight next summer although he might have gotten more money out of it. He didn't sit in a chair like Tunney and dictate how much money his opponent was to get out of the match. It is possible that he doesn't know now how much Norfolk will get for his purse and it's a cinch that he doesn't care.

* * * * * * * * *

Neither Gibbons nor Norfolk will get much more than their purse out of a victory. Possibly the damage that would result from the ostracism by a decisive victory would be much more in dollars than the purse they are to get.

If Gibbons knocks Norfolk out in a short round fight he might just as well retire. If he can't get matches now, he never will be able to get them after a victory over Norfolk. Wills, Renault and Tunney are already known to be afraid of him and they can't be shamed into a meeting with him.

Norfolk would be on the top place of the poison list if he beat Gibbons. It is hard enough for a good colored fighter to get matches and it would be almost impossible for him to get good paying engagements if he should win from the best light-heavyweight in the world.

Gibbons ought to win decisively and then he can have the thankless and fruitless assignment of trying to get a match with even a fair second-rater. Gibbons can't even get two-bit fighters to meet him now because they say he hurts them too much even if they are in the ring only a few minutes.

JONES TO BE RETAINED BY BADGER FACULTY

Madison, Wis., Dec. 8.—The athletic council has no intention of letting Coach Thomas E. Jones leave Wisconsin, Prof. Seth Goodnight, dean of men and member of the council, said today. Dean Goodnight squelched all newspaper reports to the effect that Jones, who has just resigned as athletic director, would not be retained at Wisconsin.

The council's action in accepting Jones' resignation was for the sole purpose of dividing the tremendous responsibilities evolving upon the athletic director. Jones will remain in charge of part of this work, including his duties as track coach, and another man will be sought to take charge of the rest, Goodnight said.

FRED McKAY WINS SNELLING HONORS

St. Paul, Dec. 8.—Fred McKay was the most consistent shooter at the Fort Snelling traps Sunday. He won the regular event with 49 breaks and followed by tying Harris for top honors in the handicap event. He lost out in the shoot-off, however. Maginnis won the shoot-off of last week's handicap tie with R. Fawcett.

A. players are out to win tomorrow night, and the Rainbows are just as determined to end up on the long end of the score Both teams have been practicing for the contest, and all who come will be assured a good time.

Several old high school players will be seen in the line-ups. The Rainbows have secured the services of such men as Day, Orth, Lowe, Fitzharris, Hagberg and Jones, while the Y. M. C. A. will play with the same line-up that held the Independents last Tuesday, including W. Heikkinen and Hill, forwards; Hess, center, Otto Heikkinen and Laitala, guards

Tom Gibbons a Norfolk Bout, Finds Appreciative Little Fans in Central Park

While the St. Paul boxer was preparing for his Madison Square battle with Kid Norfolk, negro light heavyweight champion, he found New York's great park a good place to do some of his outdoor work. The photographer caught him there with some of his little admirers. Tom takes to the kids just as the kids always take to Tom.

WALKER AND MALONE TO BATTLE

BOTH BOXERS PRONOUNCED IN TOP CONDITION

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 8.—Light workouts today completed the training of Mickey Walker, world welterweight champion, and Jock Malone, St. Paul middleweight, who meet here tonight in a 10-round no-decision bout.

Both boxers are in top shape, and as this is their third meeting, with both having won a previous bout, plenty of action is anticipated. A report that Malone's hands were in poor condition caused the Wisconsin Boxing commission to have him examined late yesterday.

Malone's hands were found to be in first class shape. The St. Paul man has a rather small hand for a fighter, the examining physician said.

Walker has not done as much boxing as Malone since his arrival here, but the boxing he has indulged in has proved that his timing is perfect and his wind all that could be asked.

The preliminary events promise plenty of action, and although rearranged since the first announcement was made, offer an attractive card.—Minneapolis Tribune.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.—Advt.
